Objective of the Seminar

India's diverse cultural landscape includes vibrant tribal communities celebrated for their rich heritage and deep connection to nature. However, these communities grapple with the dual challenge of preserving their cultural identity while navigating the demands of modern economic development, especially within the framework of Atmanirbhar Bharat Abhiyan. The proposed seminar aims to evaluate the current state of tribal entrepreneurship in India, examining both achievements and obstacles. It will scrutinize barriers such as limited access to finance, infrastructure, skills, and markets, while also highlighting successful initiatives that provide valuable insights. Emphasizing the delicate balance between economic progress and cultural preservation, the seminar will explore ways to empower tribal communities while safeguarding their unique identities and traditional knowledge. Expert panel discussions will delve into leveraging traditional wisdom for innovation, identifying capacity-building requirements, and enhancing skills crucial for sustainable enterprise development. Additionally, the seminar will address the significance of establishing market linkages and partnerships to broaden the reach of tribal entrepreneurs on national and global platforms. Ultimately, the seminar seeks to generate actionable recommendations for policymakers, stakeholders, and community leaders, fostering collaborative efforts towards inclusive and sustainable development wherein tribal communities play an active role.
